

What makes the objects a collection?

Just like people collect rocks people collect crystals but they are collected for different reasons. Crystals attract energies and can change energy.

Who began the collection and why?

People think crystals can change a lifestyle and the energy in your life. I was going to find different crystals people are selling and why they are selling them and how they describe them. For example what the crystals attract/ are used for.

What makes this interesting?

Not only do they look interesting but each crystal looks different and is one of a kind. Some people collect them because they are pretty and others truly believe they have energy for them.

How can it be organized?

By what they attract, their color, their popularity, etc.

